What happens if it rains?

Your party still proceeds as planned. Pony rides are done in our indoor pony corral and the hand feeding, bottling feeding and holding of a baby animal activities are all done in the newly renovated covered animal farm area

Is the birthday child free?

No. The birthday child is not free. They are included in the final count of all party guests.

At what age do you charge for birthday party guests?

Children between the ages of 1-15 years old are considered party guests.

Can I purchase extra favors for babies who are coming to the party but not participating?

Yes. On the party confirmation sheet (you will be given this sheet when you book your party) there is a place to let us know about these favors.

How many hostesses do I get for my party?

Monday-Friday one hostess supervises and on Saturday-Sunday two hostesses with additional helpers throughout the party.

In what order do the party activities happen?

First, the children start off with pony rides. As each child takes their turn, all the children cheer each other on.

Next, we go on to hand feeding the animals. At this point the hostess takes out a large bucket of animal feed and continuously gives it to the children as we walk throughout the farm.

After hand feeding the children wash their hands and return to the party room to have their pizza and juice (bagels for 9:45 party) and any adult food you have ordered will also be nicely displayed.

The second half of the party begins with the children sitting on our bench where they will hold a baby animal. Either a baby bunny or a baby goat.

The fourth and final animal activity is bottle feeding. Each child will get a milk bottle and feed the goats and sheep.

Lastly the children will wash their hands and return to the party room for the birthday cake celebration.

Is an hour and a half enough time for all the activities?

Yes. The party activities are well panned out. All children are given ample time to complete each activity.

Can the order of the party be changed?

No, we do not change the order. Each activity is scheduled so that other parties do not conflict with your party activities.

Can I change an activity?

Party activities cannot be changed. Each activity is scheduled so that other parties do not conflict with your party activities.

Is the animal farm open to the public when my party is going on?

Yes it is, however the party hostess keeps the party together as it moves from one activity to another.

Can I change the date and/or time of my party after I have booked it?

Yes. You can change your date and/or time based on what is available (within 30 days).

Can I bring my own food to the party?
